The Nominating committee's work report and motivated opinion regarding proposals for Board members prior to the 2018 AGM

The Nominating committee has held three meetings at which all committee members were present. The work of the nominating committee begins by going through a check list containing all tasks that it must perform under the Code of Corporate Governance and additionally, a schedule is established for the work that needs to be done.

The Nominating committee has based its considerations on the Board having an appropriate composition, considering the company's current situation, future focus and other circumstances, characterised by versatility and width in terms of the skills, experience and background of Board members. As a basis for its considerations, the nominating committee has received information from the Chairman of Addtech AB's Board of Directors on the Board's own evaluation and on the company's operations, stage of development and other circumstances. The Nominating committee has also interviewed some of the Board members and been given a presentation by the CEO. Also, the committee has been provided with assessments of the Board regarding the quality and efficiency of the auditor's work.

The Nominating committee has applied rule 4.1 of the Swedish Code of Corporate Governance as its diversity policy when drafting its proposal. The committee's proposal entails the Board having seven members, of which two are women, corresponding to 29 percent, which does not meet the requirements of the Code of Corporate Governance for an equal gender balance. The Nominating committee supports the initiative of the Swedish Corporate Governance Board and its ambition of ensuring that the least represented gender reaches a level of around 40 percent on the boards of listed companies by 2020. When the Nominating committee assesses that there is reason to propose further changes to the Board's composition, the Nominating committee, as it has according to the principles so far, will continue to pay regard to versatility and width on the Board, including gender balance, in its considerations regarding which Board composition enables the Board to acquire the best skills and expertise.

The proposed Board members collectively possess sound financial and industrial expertise, along with knowledge of international conditions and markets, including relevant sustainability aspects. The question regarding the independence of Board members has been discussed. The Nominating committee's assessment in these respects is stated next to each proposed member under the presentation on the proposed Board members. The proposal for Board composition meets the relevant independence requirements.
